

J9's Books

Cooking Biographies - Mom

Three Many Cooks : One Mom, Two Daughters : Their Shared Stories of Food, Faith & Family

by Pam Anderson

A mother and two daughters present a memoir on the power of food, faith and relationships. Includes recipes.

32 Yolks : from my Mother's Table to Working the Line

by Eric Ripert

The chef and co-owner of the New York restaurant Le Bernardin and a regular guest judge on Bravo's Top Chef shares how the events from his childhood prompted him to learn to cook and find happiness as he was finally able to share his lifelong love of food with other people.

The Best Cook in the World : Tales from my Momma's Table

by Rick Bragg

Presents a food memoir, cookbook, and tribute to the author's mother, sharing classic family recipes--many of them pre-dating the Civil War--and preparation secrets for such traditional fare as short ribs, biscuits and perfect mashed potatoes.

Always Home : a Daughter's Recipes & Stories

by Fanny Singer

A cookbook and memoir by the daughter of food activist Alice Waters shares recipe-complemented vignettes about the traditions that shaped her upbringing, her insights into her mother's philosophies and her own culinary coming of age.

My Mother's Kitchen : Breakfast, Lunch, Dinner, and the Meaning of Life

by Peter Gethers

The author examines his mother's life as the daughter of a restaurateur and friend to famous chefs, describing how, after she suffered a stroke, he would cook her meals several times a week and learn her kitchen secrets

Bittersweet : Lessons from my Mother's Kitchen

by Matthew McAllester

The author cooks his mother's favorite recipes as he tries to remember what she was like before she became mentally ill and to come to terms with her death

Save Me the Plums : my Gourmet Memoir

by Ruth Reichl

The journalist and author chronicles her groundbreaking tenure as editor-in-chief of Gourmet magazine and her work with legendary fellow epicureans to transform how America thinks about food.

My American Dream : a Life of Love, Family, and Food

by Lidia Bastianich

The Emmy Award-winning host of Lidia's Kitchen and best-selling author of Lidia's Celebrate Like an Italian shares a heartwarming, revelatory memoir that traces her impoverished but loving upbringing under Tito's Communist regime, her years as a refugee while trying to enter the United States and her early start as a restaurant worker.

Lindenhurst Memorial Library

1 Lee Avenue

Lindenhurst, New York 11757 | (631) 957-7755

<https://www.lindenhurstlibrary.org/>